Starts Long Cut

After a long silence, while the mill was shut down for repairs, the sawmill whistle blew Wednesday morning the signal for the beginning of what promises to be the longest season's cut in its history. Almost a full crew of new mill hands from the Sound, have been hired for this season and it will be some days before they become accustomed to the new mill and deliver the maximum daily cut. However, the periodical blasts of the whistle and businesslike buzz of the saws are welcome sounds to all.

To Beat Parker

The Fairbanks "Times" party of mushers started for the summit of Mt. McKinley, the highest peak in America, on February 5th determined to beat Professor Parker who is mushing toward the summit from another direction. The party consists of four hardy mushers, four sleds, twenty of the pick of Fairbanks dogs and about 1600 pounds of provisions.

Lois In From Klawock

Rev. F. Waggoner, of Klawock, came to Wrangell Tuesday with the Lois, bringing Mary Peratovich for treatment for rheumatism. They were accompanied by Edward Smith, Jack, Robert, James, Nellie and Sarah Peratovich, brothers and sisters of the afflicted girl, Nancy Carlson and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Benson.

Seniors Entertain

The Senior Class of the Wrangell Public School is advertising a program for next Tuesday night at the Red Men's Hall. It can reasonably be expected to be up to the usual standard of school entertainments and should be well attended by the citizens of Wrangell.

Gashed Scalp

While attempting some difficult stunts on rollers at the rink last evening Tommy Case fell to the floor striking his head and cutting a gash in the scalp about four inches in length.

Canners Looking Over Prospects

Geo. H. Barnes and O. A. Brown, of Seattle, were in town this week looking over the cannery prospects. They came chiefly to learn whether water service, waterfront and additional street rights would be guaranteed. Having secured these rights from the city and individuals, it is confidently expected that they will return soon and begin the construction of the cannery buildings.

Baseball Publicly Swatted

After much delay caused by the late arrival of some of the Sentinel players, the indoor baseball game was finally started last Friday evening and was a surprise to spectators and players as well.

The first few innings were much as expected, the ball being unmercifully pounded about by both teams who ran the score up to 38-38. But the farther the game progressed the better the quality of baseball turned out and during the last two innings only the one score, which gave the victory to the Sentinels, was made.

Anyone who watched the game could not help but observe that with a little practice, (not one of either team having ever played the game before) the game can be brought to a point where it can be appreciated by the most experienced fan.

E. B. Barbee umpired the game to the satisfaction of everyone concerned.

Council Meeting

Owing to the illness of Mayor McCormack, the regular meeting of the City Council for February was not held until last Saturday evening. The most important matter to come before the meeting was the new cannery proposition in the northern part of town. Messrs Barnes and Brown, promoters of the cannery proposition were desirous of securing city water and street privileges, and in consideration of the added industry and resources brought to the town by the investment, all the encouragement considered proper was offered. The water main will be extended along Stikine Avenue, an extension that is inevitable, and which will accommodate many residents that might otherwise have been obliged to wait for the water service.

The prompt attention of these matters concerning the welfare of the town speaks well of the citizens choice of Councilmen and all voters should feel proud in having helped in the election of efficient representatives.

Driven Deep

While in from Point Ward early in the week, W. D. Grant reports that the new pile driver is doing the work in fine style and will finish by the 19th.

The piles are being driven to depths ranging from 15 to 26 feet before bed rock is struck. This surprising depth of mud necessitated the cutting of longer piles and a crew of men had to be put into the timber to supply them.

Youthful Organization

The youthful native born of Fairbanks have organized a fraternal order called the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden North. The Arctic Brotherhood will be asked to foster the lodge until it has gained strength enough to stand by itself.

We wish to thank the members of Camp Wrangell, Arctic Brotherhood, for the beautiful present given in honor of our recent marriage.

Capt. and Mrs. Fred Stackpole.

Returns From Seattle

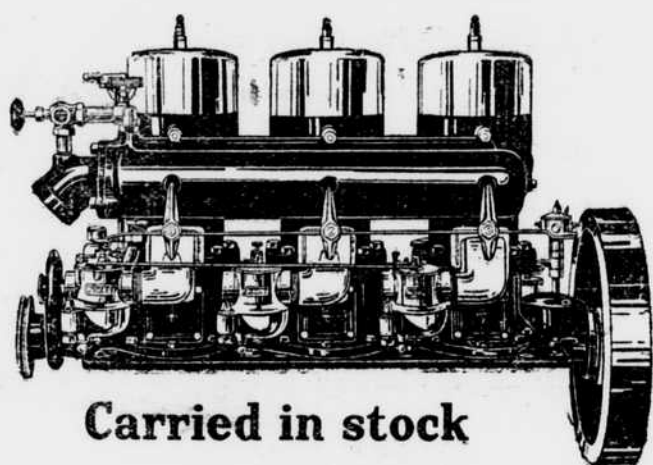

Dept. U. S. Marshal, Schnabel, who went south to McNeils Island with prisoners sentenced at the Jungau Grand Jury, returned on the Curacao Friday. He reports that the prisoners gave no trouble and a good voyage both ways.

While in Seattle, Mr. Schnabel, who is an enthusiastic member of the Alert Fire Company, purchased some straps etc for the equipment of the hose carts. These are sure to be appreciated by the Alert Firemen for his experience as a fireman in other cities assures the correctness of the articles.

Alaska Ready

The sawmill tug, Alaska, which has been on the beach for repairs and overhauling, was made ready for service Wednesday evening. An entire new set of lines were put into her boiler and several minor repairs made to fit her for the season's work.

That the invention of a machine can work a great change in an industry, has been shown repeatedly since the introduction of the iron age. The cotton gin and the self-binder have revolutionized the cotton and wheat industries.

And now as we are about settled in our mind that cotton is king, along comes a fibre stripping machine that can be adjusted to strip the fibre from flax, hemp, sisal, jute or ramie and at the rate of up to two tons of fibre per day.

Especially will the new machine make itself felt in stripping ramie, the fibre of which is much finer than flax and longer. It was formerly used in the manufacture of the famous East Indian gowns. Ramie is raised now in southern California and the acreage will swell rapidly in the influence of the wonderful machine. Its fibre is longer finer and stronger than cotton. It mixes with silk, wool or cotton and makes either more durable. Agricultural experts predict the ramie industry will soon rival that of cotton.

Eight million tons of flax straw is burned annually in America because hand labor is too expensive in preparing the fibre. When eight million tons of flax straw is stripped by machinery, the United States will be independent of Europe for linen, which is imported chiefly from England, Germany and France. No wonder the opinion that King Cotton may be dethroned.

What Really Hurt.

"I had no intention," the returned traveler said, "of cheating Uncle Sam out of a single cent, and I honestly thought I had declared everything I brought back with me that was dutiable, but when the customs officers overhauled my baggage at the dock they found several trinkets I had forgotten."

"And they confiscated them?"

"Sure!"

"Tough, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I didn't mind that. What hurt me the worst was that just before I went away on that trip I had taken a complete course of memory lessons."—Chicago Tribune.

Mother Know.

"Mother, I'm going to give a chasing dish party."

"Very well. I'll prepare some sandwiches. You'll all be hungry after you get through trying to cook."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Course of Your Tears.

Have you ever noticed two tiny holes at the "nose" end of each eye? Probably not, for they are very tiny, like pinholes. But if you look at your eye carefully in a mirror you will find them. They are tear ducts or tubes. Your tears start behind your eyebrows, at the narrow end of the eye. They pass out below the eyelids, and the blinking of the eyelids carries them toward the other end of the eye, where the ducts or overflow pipes collect and carry them down into your nose. That is why you are apt to blow your nose when you cry. A flow of tears is going on all the time to lubricate the eyeball. It is only when you are under powerful emotion that they overflow.

Primogeniture.

The law of primogeniture sends back its roots to the most ancient times. Away back in the patriarchal ages the first born son had a superiority over all his brethren and in the absence of his father was in every important sense the head of the house. Upon the death of the father he became by the unwritten law, which could not be questioned, the priest and lord of the family, and naturally to him fell the property as well as the honors of the household. Primogeniture wherever it is found today is the lingering remnant of the ancient custom, a custom which common sense and justice pronounce to be as unfair as it is superstitious.—Exchange.

First Letter Carriers.

It is not clear that the letter carriers were regularly employed before 1753, when tradition tells us that Benjamin Franklin, the new postmaster general, employed them in Philadelphia and possibly in New York. The earliest evidence we have is of 1702, when the Philadelphia postmaster advertised that his "boy" had run away and that patrons must call for their letters at the postoffice. The Postal Journal of Hugh Pinlay tells us that Boston had no letter carrier in 1773. Of New York he says that "soon after the arrival of a mail the letters are quickly delivered by a runner," which means messenger or letter carrier.

Half a Face Missing.

"It is not an uncommon thing," says a man who has hunted in central Africa, "to meet a native with half of his face missing, and when you ask him how it happened he will tell you that a hyena snapped at him while he was asleep. It is marvelous how they recover from such wounds, as the teeth of the animal must be poisonous, and the natives have no antiseptics and a very crude way of treating wounds. When a 'fist' as the natives call it, comes round the camp howling the 'boys' shout all sorts of vile names at it. But very often the animal makes no noise whatever, and not till next morning is the loss of something discovered."

The Roman Lupetto.

The Roman lupetto, which is almost indistinguishable from the so called Pomeranian dog, invariably tries to bury or cover over any food given him which he does not like. If fed on a loose drugget he will skillfully cover up the obnoxious food. If the carpet is nailed down so that he cannot do this he goes through the exact process with his nose which would turn over the plate if it were movable. The lupetto has a general contempt for any but meat diet, and, though he may condescend to accept bread and milk out of deference to his owner (many of them would not make this concession), he is sure to go through the form of protest first.

Spoke From Experience.

Fond Mother—Now, look here, George! I want you to break off with that girl. She is very pretty and all that, but I know her too well to want you to risk your life and happiness by marrying her. Why, she knows no more about housekeeping than I do about Greek—not a bit.

George—Perhaps not, but she can learn.

Mother—After marriage is rather late for that, George.

George—But you said yourself that you did not know a thing about housekeeping until after you were married.

Mother—Very true, George, and your poor father died of dyspepsia twenty years ago.

GREAT NATURES.

Great natures are always generous. They are fountains not only of vitality, but of bestowal. However great the rewards they receive may be, these rewards are but a fraction of the worth of the service rendered, and no man ought to be satisfied, whatever his position or work, unless he can feel that he is giving far more than he is receiving.

A Snake Story From India.

A queer story of the cure of a snake bite comes from India. A young man bitten by a venomous snake was evidently dying. The moh called in resolved to try the most powerful remedy he knew. He tied a cowrie shell on a piece of string and muttered incantations till it began to whirl round and round and finally disappeared. In a few minutes the snake that had done the damage appeared with the string and shell round its neck and was commanded by the moh to put its mouth to the wound for about ten minutes, after which it went away. The dying man speedily recovered.

Divers' Madness.

An Australian pearl diver says that one of the strange effects of diving is the invariable bad temper felt while working at the bottom of the sea. As this usually passes away as soon as the surface is reached, it is probably due to the pressure of the air affecting the brain. The exhilaration and good temper of the mountain climber are contrary feelings from an opposite cause. A diver becomes so angry at some imaginary wrongdoing on the part of those in the boat above that he gives the signal to be pulled up, "with the intention of knocking the heads off the entire crew," only to forget what he came up for when the surface is reached.

.401 Caliber

Self-Loading Rifle.

This new Winchester is reloaded by recoil, the repeating as well as the firing mechanism being under control of the trigger finger. A bullet fired from it strikes a blow of 2038 pounds—force enough to topple over the biggest game—penetration enough to reach the innermost vital spot. The wonderful in operation and powerful in execution, this rifle is neither complicated in construction nor cumbersome to handle.

It Hits Like The Hammer Of Thor.
